Body of Work Meditations on Mortality from the Human

Medical student Christine Montross felt nervous standing outside the anatomy lab on her first day of class. Entering a room with stainless-steel tables topped by corpses in body bags was initially unnerving. But once Montross met her cadaver, she found herself intrigued by the person the woman once was and fascinated by the strange, unsettling beauty of the human form. They called her Eve. The

Body of Work Meditations on Mortality from the Human

The skeleton of Body of Work is Eve's gradual dissection, described from the perspective of a medical student maturing from a nervous neophyte to a survivor of the first semester of medical school. Montross describes how the cadaver teaches and affects. How it forces reflection on death, dying, disease, and mortality, on autopsy, surgery, a dying patient, and illness in her own family. How dissection contributes to stress in the first year of medical school. But, ultimately, the cadaver
